Ivan Torres is counsel in the New York office of Cahill Gordon & Reindel LLP where he focuses his practice on litigation matters.

Ivan represents global corporations, financial institutions, boards of directors, and select individuals in litigation and appeals, as well as before government and regulatory bodies. His practice covers securities litigation, commercial litigation, class action defense, government investigations including SEC enforcement actions, criminal inquiries (including FCPA), various internal investigations (including those overseen by audit committees and special committees), regulatory guidance, First Amendment/media litigation and appellate work.

In 2022, Ivan was a part of the Cahill trial team that earned recognition as Litigators of the Week by The American Lawyer following their precedent-setting win defending Credit Suisse in a foreign exchange markets class action following an eight-day jury trial in the SDNY.

Ivan maintains an active pro bono practice, representing clients in a range of matters including criminal proceedings, custodial and matrimonial litigation on behalf of abused women. Ivan also serves as a coach to the mock trial and moot court teams from his alma mater, Brooklyn Technical High School, having coached them to multiple city-wide and state-wide championships.
