European leveraged finance practice

Cahill has recently expanded its finance offering in London with the addition of an English law finance practice and additional New York law finance capability. The London finance practice currently comprises a six-partner English law loan practice and New York law loans and high yield practice, together with a team of experienced associates capable of working on European and cross border transactions across various capital structures. The firm will continue to make further investments in the London team throughout the year.

The team has extensive experience in the European leveraged finance and high yield market. Reflecting the orientation of the US finance practice, the London finance practice will primarily represent lenders but is also well placed to take on corporate mandates. The team also has significant expertise working with private credit funds.

The practice offers:

- a high quality integrated loan and high yield platform acting primarily for lenders
- a deep enough bench to handle bid processes and multiple deals
- a first class cross border practice leveraging off our New York practice market share, market know-how and sector expertise, together with the team’s deep understanding of the market in Europe
- advice to lenders across the spectrum of finance products from high yield / term loan B / unitranche / PIK / private placement
- execution of NY law financings out of London
- access to an established network of credible English law and top tier local law practices with the experience and track record in this space to provide all necessary ancillary English law and local law advice, synthesized and delivered through the Cahill platform.
