Angela F. Collins regularly represents broadband providers, competitive local exchange carriers (CLECs), Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) service providers, information service providers, Internet providers, wireless providers, and cable companies in all aspects of their business, such as regulatory compliance, taxation, litigation, and negotiation of contracts.

Angela serves as regulatory counsel in connection with mergers, acquisitions, and other corporate transactions, and routinely provides regulatory advice to financial institutions involved in communications-related transactions. She also represents clients in connection with matters before the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), Congress, state regulatory commissions, state legislatures, state Attorneys General offices, and state and federal courts.

Praised as a “go-to” and as “amazing to work with” by clients, Angela is recognized as Up & Coming in the D.C. Telecoms, Broadcast & Satellite table by Chambers USA and named as a recommended communications lawyer by The Legal 500 US.

During law school, Angela was a law clerk in the Federal Law and Public Policy division of MCI WorldCom, Inc., a legal intern for Commissioner Harold Furchtgott-Roth of the Federal Communications Commission, and an intern in the Legal & Regulatory Affairs Department of the National Association of Broadcasters.
