Tammy Roy is a member of Cahill's Executive Committee and Co-Chair of the firm's Commercial Litigation practice group. She is an accomplished trial attorney who represents global corporations and financial institutions in complex commercial and securities litigation in federal and state courts throughout the country and in connection with regulatory investigations and enforcement matters.

Tammy has been praised by Chambers as a "partner who is the full picture," "pragmatic in terms of how she thinks about the business perspective and needs," and "great on her feet in court and a real talent." Clients note that she is "super detail-oriented and great at handling thorny issues in the details." In addition to being ranked as a leading litigator by Chambers USA, Tammy has also been recognized by The Legal 500, named as a Litigation Star by Benchmark Litigation, and was featured among the 2020 Notable Women in Law by Crain's New York Business.

"Tammy is intelligent, practical and really takes the time to understand not only the issue at hand but also to understand its impact on the business." – Chambers USA

In 2024, Tammy was named as a Thomson Reuters Stand-out Lawyer. She was recognized as a 2023 General Litigation Trailblazer by The National Law Journal, and in 2022 as one of The American Lawyer's Litigators of the Week, for her role in the winning defense of Credit Suisse in a jury trial in the Southern District of New York involving claims of a 16-bank global conspiracy to fix prices in the foreign exchange market in violation of the federal antitrust laws. Tammy was shortlisted for the Women in Business Law Awards Americas, Financial Regulation Lawyer of the Year for both 2022 and 2023 and is listed in Lawdragon's 500 Leading Litigators in America guide. Earlier in her career, Tammy was named to Benchmark Litigation's "Under 40 Hot list."

Tammy joined Cahill in 2001, and was elected to the partnership in 2010. She serves as Chair of the firm's Women's Initiatives Committee.
