
Trump's First 100 Days of Crypto Asset Regulation

Date: 05/02/25

The first 100 days of President Trump's second term have ushered in a transformative era for crypto asset regulation in the United States, marked by a pro-innovation, deregulatory approach across federal agencies that may pave the way for the crypto market to become integrated with the broader financial system. This alert synthesizes key policy shifts and announcements, grouped by agency, and analyzes their significance for the crypto industry. Links to the announcements and other publications are provided in the appendix for ease of reference.
